By Mark Freeman and Michael Ward

We ask the reader to begin with the assumption that there are now homosexuals, always have been homosexuals and will continue to be homosexuals. Disregard old controversies concerning excess hormones, or Freudian complexes, and deal instead with the existence of a gay subculture. We hope to do without the well-worn arguments that homosexuality occurs in pigeons, in monkeys, and in dozens of other species, nor do we wish to drag all the famous figures out of their musty closets: Herman Melville, Bessie Smith, Florence Nightingale... happy landings to Amelia Earhart, and goodbye Montgomery Clift.

We ask you to begin with your own memories, of sleeping over at a girlfriend's no-boys-allowed pajama party, of the peeking and comparing of adolescent boys. These are accepted as innocent in the young. Male bonding continues into military service, the prison, the factory, the local bars and clubs. Virtually everyone has had a same-sex experience, or at least has found oneself imagining or fantasizing it. Yet homosexuality is still socially proscribed and illegal in most states.

Both the Right and parts of the Left claim that homosexuality is a sign of decline, of decadent culture, and should be either rejected or repressed, or somehow simply vanish. Perhaps for fear of guilt by association, progressive forces have often avoided the question, or have taken weak, strictly civil-libertarian stands. The early feminist and gay liberation movements also made mistakes by identifying the 'nuclear family' or straightness itself as the main enemy, rather than facing an economic system at its root. This brief history, we hope, will encourage the kind of communication that is needed in the coming months as people are faced with responding to a common enemy on several fronts.

The issue of homosexuality is little understood by most people, and its very mystery is able to grab and hold public attention.

On June 28, 1969, New York police set out on another of their routine 'Queer bar' raids. But that night, the gay people in the vicinity of the Stonewall bar decided they were no longer willing to be intimidated and pushed around. This was no doubt a sign of the turbulent times: gay men and lesbians had been active in and had learned the lessons of the civil rights, anti-war and women's movements. By all reports, it was a few lesbians, drag queens and Puerto Rican gay men who launched the first rocks and bricks at "New York's finest." Soon a large crowd had gathered, and, in an ironic twist, had locked the police themselves into the bar they had come to roust. The riot continued for two days.

The militancy of Stonewall was a breakthrough. A sense of outrage replaced the guilt and shame of the past. While not everyone saw themselves as defending the barricades (the "gay community" after all, cuts across class and race lines and includes even the most comfortably off), everyone felt their lives were somehow limited by being gay.

Nine years later, it appears that we were foolish in not expecting a backlash. Just as the Right is now moving to turn around the affirmative action gains of the Civil Rights Struggles, so it is also mobilizing reaction against the progress the gay movement has made. The fundamentalist campaign fronted by Bryant in Miami recalls certain episodes from history. One such episode took place here in the Bay area following the Gold Rush era.

Ever since San Francisco had grown up as the financial and entertainment center of the west, it has had a reputation as a wide open town. Lesbians and male homosexuals looking to get away from the prying, petty parochialism and overt prejudice of smaller cities and towns have always found their way to San Francisco. In addition to some infamous lesbians who arrived disguised as male cowhands or sailors, and to some outrageous queens holding forth in the bawdy houses of the day, were scores more who lived a workaday life unsuspected by the other miners, clerks, or barmaids.

The flourishing Barbary Coast, San Francisco's red light district, as well as the general sexual permissiveness of the city, came under the attack of the newly formed genteel class, and by the staid religious zealots. During the 1870's, a revival movement led to the passage of a whole slew of repressive laws against any number of "sins and abominations", including homosexuality. These fanatics preached, as usual, that fire and brimstone would be the reward for this latter day Sodom and Gomorrah. But the 1906 quake, unfortunately, flattened most of the respectable parts of the city, and left the Barbary Coast, with its dens of iniquity, still standing. The fundamentalists were particularly upset by this twist of fate.

For another lesson in homophobia (fear of proximity to homosexuals), we look next at the climate of fear and repression in Washington, D.C. during the spring of 1950. Joe McCarthy's witchhunts for dangerous subversives in government left no accusation unused. The Senator from Wisconsin, searching for any dirt or any innuendo to use against his liberal enemies, began an avalanche of anti-Communist—and anti-homosexual—hysteria.

According to a New York Times news story on April 19th of that year, "... Guy George Gabrielson, Republican National Chairman, asserted today that sexual perverts who have infiltrated our government in recent years were perhaps as dangerous as the actual Communists. By that December, a major Senate Committee interim report revealed that a total of 4,954 cases had been processed, that is, removed from employment, for reasons of homosexuality. This included 4,380 in the military services, and 574 on Federal civilian payrolls.

The atmosphere of fear spread; the issue of homosexuality is little understood by most people, and its very mystery is able to grab and hold public attention. Better yet, Homosexuals were tracked down, arrested and marked with a pink triangle, just as the Jews received the yellow Star of David.

those who choose members of their own gender for sexual contact or affection can be painted as monsters and attackers of small children. In Boise, Idaho, this occurred when a city-wide homosexual hunt was started by a group of wealthy lawyers, businessmen and City Fathers. It was this power elite, says John Gerassi in his book Boys of Boise, that in 1955 went after the homosexuals because they thought that they could use the scandal to rock City Hall, which was then in the hands of a fairly decent reformist administration. Thousands of people were questioned about their sexuality. By the time the hysteria subsided, a number of men were serving long prison terms, convicted of involvement in a sex ring that used young boys, a ring that never actually existed. The gay people fled en masse from Boise. People in every walk of life—gay people who had never gotten involved in anything, who were just afraid. Many eventually moved to San Francisco.

One positive result of this kind of repression was the formation of political groups for self-protection. Harry Hay, the left wing militant who helped organize the Mattachine Society in 1950, pointed out that homosexual purges of government agencies were based on the principle that homosexuals were susceptible to blackmail. It is notable, said Hay, that not one single political or pressure group among the liberals let alone the left wing, lifted either voice or finger to protest the monstrous social and civil injustice and sweeping slander of this dictum.

The current crusade to repeal gay civil rights ordinances is clearly part of a larger right wing offensive. California State Senator John Briggs had hoped to climb to the Republican gubernatorial nomination on the strength of his anti-gay initiative, which would allow all Californians to vote on whether gay people and their supporters should be permitted to have employment in California schools. Briggs himself has also made links with an initiative for a more comprehensive death penalty and support for the Jarvis-Gann Initiative.

Researcher Sasha Gregory-Lewis has established that the brains behind it all are found in Washington in groups such as the Conservative Caucus, the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress, and a loose affiliation of friends like Senators S. I. Haya-kawa, Orrin B. Hatch, Jesse Helms, Rep. Lawrence McDonald and, of course, Ronald Reagan. The man in charge of the pursestrings appears to be Richard A. Viguere, a power behind the throne who has raised $8,000,000 for Reagan, $6,000,000 for George Wallace, and has supported Briggs' anti-gay petition drive with an additional half million. Viguere organizes and fundraises through his growing collection of mailing lists and computerized files, which now contain a minimum of a million supporters of right wing causes.

Report to the Listener

During the first six months of last year, the number of people who subscribed to the station dropped by about two thousand, representing nearly a 25% decline in the amount of revenue the station is receiving. The problems that are caused by such a drop in support are many. The station has operated from October (the start of the fiscal year) to the present with a substantial reduction in anticipated income, and we have now reached the point beyond which we cannot continue in our present state. In order for KPFA to get through the year without the drastic diminishment of our operation, we must realize a large increase in income and reduce expenditures. Without active participation from everyone concerned about the health and welfare of KPFA, we could face debilitating cutbacks. These could take the form of a drop in the quality of our programming, not to mention a loss of morale for the staff.

I urge you to give this some thought, and to provide any support that seems reasonable to you. Some people have decided to host affairs in their homes, cookouts, card parties, etc. to encourage subscriptions and donations. These and virtually any other ideas that may produce subscribers and/or money are what will be needed to return the station to its peak level of operation and efficiency.

If you have ever lamented that you did not do enough for KPFA, now is the time to help. We need to eliminate a potential budgetary deficit of $44,000 between now and the end of September. Now is your chance to aid in keeping KPFA out of serious financial trouble.

I hope to be able to give lots of good news next month about how well things are going on the financial front.

Until then.....

Albert Sampson

We present a selection of the responses to Paul Drabkin's letter in the May Folio, concerning KPFA's coverage of the Arab-Israeli conflict. The opinions expressed are those of the writers, and do not necessarily reflect those of Folio.

LARGER PERSPECTIVE

Editor,

Paul Drabkin's letter in last month's FOLIO concerning anti-semitism on the part of the KPFA news staff struck a responsive chord in all of us. We are part of a progressive Jewish study/action group; many of us listen to KPFA regularly, and we agree that anti-semitism is a problem at the station. There are many ways in which anti-semitism can be expressed—from the genocide perpetrated against the Jews by the Nazis; to agreements to keep Jews out of certain neighborhoods, occupations and political positions; to Jewish stereotyping and racist jokes. KPFA's anti-semitism (along with much of the left's) is fairly subtle, manifesting itself in inconsistent positions on the Middle East.

One example of this concerns the coverage given to Israel's recent invasion of southern Lebanon. What appeared anti-semitic to us was not what was said (we agree that the invasion was a brutal attack) but the importance assigned to it compared to other crisis situations KPFA has covered over the years. Why did this merit news bulletins every hour (often when nothing new had happened)? Why didn't KPFA have hour by hour coverage when Syria invaded Lebanon?

There are many questions that we'd like to address to KPFA and to the left in general, realizing that some of these apply to KPFA only in the broader context of its role as a leftist news media. Why does KPFA and the left only criticize reactionary governmental policies within Israel while paying little or no attention to oppressive Arab regimes? Why is Israel condemned for being a theocracy when nothing is said about Libya and other Arab nations whose societies are ruled under much more strict religious laws? Why can a group of commandos, acting in the name of the Palestinians, divide the passengers on a hijacked plane not on the basis of class, not even on the basis of whether they are Israeli, but on the basis of whether or not they are Jewish, and not have this denounced by the left as anti-semitism. Why is it correctly pointed out that, one way or another, hundreds of thousands of Palestinians were forced to leave their homes in Arab countries, with no place to go except Israel, thereby further aggravating the problems of the Palestinians? What lies behind the attitude that there should be self-determination for the Palestinians—but not for the Jewish people? Why is there little if any coverage of anti-government, progressive movements within Israel?

As Jewish leftists, we are interested in separating justified support for the Palestinians from anti-Jewish thoughts and actions that might opportunistically use the cause of the Palestinians for other purposes. Basically our scepticism of statements by the American left that it is not anti-Jewish comes from the disparity of its reactions to the struggle of the Palestinians and other struggles. Where were the cries of racism and genocide when one African tribe/people did in another during the Biafran war in which hundreds of thousands were killed? And where was the American revolutionary movement when millions died in Bangladesh? Why was there so little response to this situation that involved much greater resources and hundreds of times as many deaths as are involved in Palestine/Israel? And where were the demonstrations and actions in support of the Czechs and Slovaks when Czechoslovakia was invaded by an imperialist Soviet military force proportionately larger than the one the U.S. used in Viet Nam? And what of the destruction wreaked by Idi Amin in Uganda against tribes/peoples other than his own?

We, as Jewish leftists need answers to these questions that will show us that revolution for oppressed people means just that, and not revolution for all oppressed people except Jews. Drabkin asks, "(why must Jews) be morally more responsible than their enemies, while the violence perpetrated by other peoples are excused because they have been oppressed?" Since World War II there have been many millions of refugees, hundreds of border changes, a hundred new states whose territory reflects the boundaries of colonial administration and a couple dozen theocracies. Until the left begins to treat Israel consistently in terms of the larger perspective we can only conclude that anti-semitism is operating behind positions that it takes concerning such issues.

We urge the staff at KPFA and our comrades on the left to confront these attitudes and take a closer look at how they deal with the problems of the Middle East. Feedback on this letter is welcomed.

FANATICAL ZIONISTS

Editor:

I wish to respond, as an American of Jewish descent, to Paul Drabkin's charge in the May FOLIO that KPFA offers "knee-jerk support" of the "allegedly radical cause of the PLO."

The Israeli state was conceived in blood and treachery, and was born of guilt and terrorism. Sadly, these are historical facts which I must face as a Jew. In the years before its creation, fanatical Zionists such as the current Prime Minister waged a tiny but systematic terrorist war against both the native Arabs and the pro-Arabist Englishmen (who were admittedly imperialists, but who were trying to fight World War II at the time). This terrorist campaign was ultimately successful in scaring most of the Arabs out of Palestine, not to mention the many who were butchered and their homes bulldozed. Powerful Zionist organizations elsewhere in the world were also successful in capitalizing upon the world's shock at the Nazi policies of genocide, in order to cause the U.N. to declare a Jewish State in Palestine, at the expense of the non-Jews who lived there.

These non-Jews, and the many others who became refugees after 1967, are a people who have had their country stolen from them in this generation. The Zionist claim to Palestine dates not from recent history, but from 136 A.D. If international law were structured in this manner, Italy would have a valid claim to all of Europe.

The only viable international organization which represents the just national aspirations of the Palestinians is the PLO, which, I believe, why KPFA supports them. The PLO does not advocate "driving the Jews into the sea." It supports the creation of a secular democratic state in Palestine, in which people of all religions may be regarded equally under the law.

Perhaps the greatest obstacle to the secularization of Palestine is the United States, which uses the Jewish government as a tool of American policy in the Middle East. Other than the U.S., Israel is virtually without friends in the world, and its few allies read like a roll-call of world fascism: Chile, Argentina, South Africa, Rhodesia, Taiwan, and South Korea.

I support KPFA's position in recognizing the PLO as an organization which is attempting to rectify history's greatest land steal since the Nazi regime itself.

Sincerely,

Dave Linn

Pros & Cons

NO ANTI-SEMITISM

KPFA Folio Editor:

I would like to comment on the letter by Paul Drabkin in the May issue of the FOLIO. Some of the criticisms of the KPFA staff—no doubt have some merit. But I want to address myself to the specific charge of anti-Semitism on the part of KPFA staff and commentators.

Paul calls upon the station to do "... an informal survey of Jewish listeners ... and see if I'm alone in my perception".

I have been a listener (and subscriber) of KPFA for 15 years. I regularly listen to the 8:45 am and 6:00 pm news broadcasts. I also frequently listen to the commentators, particularly of foreign affairs, and pay special attention to news and comments on the Middle East.

As a Jew of the Old and New Left, I can testify that I found no trace of anti-Semitism expressed by the KPFA commentators.

I find that they are even-handed in their treatment of the reactionary anti-Soviet Arab oil moguls and the reactionary Soviet-hating Menachim Begin.

BOTH SIDES

Editor:

Paul Drabkin wrote a letter that was published in the May FOLIO to which he urged response. I, for one, concur with what he wrote. It has been my impression, sadly, that the radical chic has acted (or spoken) against the Israeli side of the Middle East struggle in favor of the "underdogs", the Palestinians. What I have seen to be missing is an open mindedness that researches, studies, considers both or all sides of the issue. History seems to be wanting.

It is true that the Jewish community may be small and influential, but so are many other groups in our pluralistic society (except perhaps the third world, but hopefully that is changing too). Since ours is a government by lobby, it is important that the Jews and other minorities be heard. Important! Hell, it's essential.

It is my hope that this radio station which professes to speak the truth or at least give all sides would do its homework before showing prejudicial ignorance.

MUSICMOBILE

Dear Editor and KPFA listeners:

I have received many phone calls and letters inquiring about the fate of the "Musicmobile" program usually heard on Friday evenings. "Musicmobile" was discontinued by a decision of the station managing council. I would like to thank those listeners who have followed the "Musicmobile" programming for the past four years and supported me, the producer, with your kind words of encouragement. Hopefully, it will be heard again on KPFA in the future.

Yours sincerely,
David Roach

BEWARE!

KPFA-Pacific,

While congratulations are definitely in order for your science program's receipt of the Peabody Award—for the sake of the people who support your station—BEWARE.

Next thing you know there will be tempting "foundation" and corporation grants to spirit you away from your basic reason for existence. Don't let yourselves be ensnared by praises and prizes from the Establishment, as have so many others. I don't have to enumerate them; you can remember all sorts of ground-roots movements that have been diverted by their own sell-outs-to-recognition, followed by material support from highly organized sources of ideological power.

It may be painful, it may be a drag that you are forced to harangue the people for nickles and dimes in order to produce free material while network slaves collect countless thousands of dollars for cranking out what their bosses want to hear, or at least for refraining from mentioning what they don't want to hear. But if you are to remain people-supported there's no other way.

I am a senior citizen who wishes to remain anonymous and this is the only contribution I can afford to offer your cause at this time:

your independence is worth any sacrifice.
You deserve that award, so TAKE IT
AND RUN FOR YOUR LIFE!

THE ROSENBERGS DIED IN JUNE

Editor:

June 19th marks the 25th anniversary of the Rosenbergs' execution. On that hot summer evening, my wife and I and our 13-year-old daughter, my parents, my brother and his wife were among the 10,000 people jammed into New York's West 17th St. between Union Square and 5th Ave., waiting for final word from the speaker's platform, which had direct phone connections. Would it be death or life? It was death. At the announcement, there were moans, shrieks, and the possibility of hysteria. Standing next to me was the Black head of the National Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born, whose name escapes me. He said: "Bill, let's head for Knickerbocker Village," where the Rosenbergs had lived on the lower East Side.

It was precisely the right thing to do. The purpose of the Rosenberg murders was to intimidate, and in the bottom-of-McCarthyism mood of that year, the executions could have dealt the final blow to the very badly damaged Resistance. I have a strong voice, and I hollered: "We're marching to Knickerbocker Village." In the unauthorized parade of about 5,000 that followed, the front rank consisted of that Black leader, our family group of seven, and a much-decorated German-Jewish ex-U.S. paratrooper.

As we moved down 2nd Ave., the huge plateglass second-story windows of clubrooms, pivoted open because of the heat, were filled with fascist-emigre Ukrainians and Poles whose organizations headquartered there. For them, the Rosenberg executions had killed the "kikes." I looked up, and their faces registered that we had risen from the dead.

At St. Mark's Place, a Daily News cameraman stopped in front of us to take a picture of the front rank. I said: "Mister, I've got a wife and 3 kids to support." The flash didn't go off. At 6th St., a man who had just driven past in a car suddenly realized who we all were, backed up and tried to kill us. For a moment it was again Peekskill 1949. I grabbed my young daughter, and several men seized the doors of the car. The driver would have had a rough time, but a police squad ear that had been pacing us rescued him. Farther on, we had to cross 2nd Ave. As I stepped out with hand upraised to stop traffic, the cops took over and did it for us. That told me we had won, but I will never forget the stunned, dead eyes of my daughter and her early-teen friends, who had gone to local rabbis and the subway station to solicit clemency telegrams to Eisenhower. Imagine killing the parents of two little children! It is good to see those children, now grown, dismantling that frame-up and, with it, the Cold War rationale it served.

FRUIT PUNCH CELEBRATES ITS FIFTH BIRTHDAY

If all the gay people in the world turned green — why, it'd look like St. Patrick's Day!
— Lily Tomlin

Fruit Punch, California's oldest and most widely heard gay news radio show celebrates its 5th birthday this month. Fruit Punch began in 1973 when KPFA producer Alan Farley "came out" and requested a program to reach other Bay Area gays. Members of Berkeley Gay Men's Health Collective, Contact Raps (later to become Berkeley Gay Raps) and East Bay Gay were contacted about the possibility of producing programs. The response was overwhelming, over 40 people showed up to produce the early shows, which were often rambling affairs. By the Spring of 1974, the collective was down to a more manageable five to seven members and has remained that way ever since.

The name "Fruit Punch" was chosen for social and political reasons. The word "Fruit" has been used for years as a derogatory term for gay men, yet the fruit of trees and vines are tasty as well as healthful, offering natural sugar and having been the subject of many great works of art. Turning the antagonists' insult into an expression of dignity, "fruit" becomes complimentary.

"Punch" means to deliver a wallop to the adversary. This Punch is delivered in two ways — turning insult to self respect by choice of "Fruit" and then by delivering the gay community's thoughts and activities through the medium of progressive radio. Then, too, Punch is a combination of juices that produces a new flavor.

Fruit Punch: Fruit as in sweet, delicious, bountiful and Punch as in a wallop disguised as a mild full-bodied mixture of the tastiest wines that workers' feet have ever produced!

Tune in on Wednesday June 7th at 10:15 pm for Fruit Punch's 5th birthday, and stay tuned throughout June for a quartet of programs relating to Gay Pride Week and Gay Freedom Day. Fruit Punch rededicates itself to providing well-produced programs by, for and about gay men, but of interest to all KPFA listeners.

BRIGGS INITIATIVE: Open Invitation to a Witch Hunt

Recently, after several months of bureaucratic delay and misunderstanding, two gay teachers were permitted to address the Sonoma County Educators Council concerning the Briggs Initiative, which would empower local school boards to fire school workers who are professed homosexuals or who advocate equal rights for homosexuals. What follows are excerpts from Sandy Rowe's address to the Council. This was her first time declaring her homosexuality: her "coming out."

The Briggs Initiative represents an assault against the constitutional and human rights of all teachers to free speech, personal privacy, free association, and academic freedom. The initiative, if it passes, would be an open invitation to a witch hunt. The measure, while it pretends to attack openly gay teachers, actually serves to intimidate the vast majority of gay school workers who are and who have been in the closet for perhaps the whole of their lives and careers. The measure could just as easily be used to harass heterosexual teachers with accusations that falsely identify them as gay. It can be applied against any teachers who are non-conformist or who openly advocate human rights for gay people. The measure could be used to silence teachers who in the course of their instruction, discuss the lives and works of such famous gay men and lesbians as Alexander the Great, Michelangelo, Walt Whitman, Gertrude Stein, James Baldwin or Florence Nightingale.

The Briggs Initiative would institutionalize the ethic of the bully and return us all to the arrogant intimidations of the McCarthy period bringing a deep freeze to academic freedom. It is urgent, therefore, to take a strong and unequivocal public stand against the Briggs Initiative. However, for that stand to be effective even more will be required.

The rationale behind the Briggs Initiative, that is, the notion that gay people are child molesters or that gay people can force their lifestyle onto the young is an ignorant and slanderous assault against a minority group. The slander is frighteningly reminiscent of Nazi charges against the Jews. It is also a characteristic of white racist propaganda against black people and all people of color. The prejudice against gay people operates with all the elements common to racism. The vast public ignorance concerning gay experience, together with the historic taboo against even speaking about it is the breeding ground for anti-gay prejudice. That is why it is important for gay people to "come out".

What is it like to grow up gay? What is the nature of gay oppression? What is the difference between lesbian and gay men's experience? What is the relationship of gay people to family life? These are not such unspeakable questions to ask. And, considering that they relate to more than ten percent of our teacher and student population, they are actually compelling. Therefore, there is a need to begin local programs of education and to alert the population to the menace of the Briggs Initiative and to describe the real lives that gay people live. It is urgent that all people begin to realize that gay people are our colleagues at work, our students, our neighbors and friends and even members of our families.

There is grave concern about the threat of the Briggs Initiative; but there is a more abiding fear that grips gay teachers; the threat of disclosure and dismissal. And this fear which exists now even without a Briggs amendment, [is] enough to [silence] the majority of teachers.

It is important to know and understand this: these women and men have made the teaching profession their lives and careers. It is also their sustenance. They are legitimately and greatly afraid of losing it.

Scenes from last year's Gay Freedom Parade

FOR MY STRAIGHT FRIENDS by Pat Parker

For the straight folks who don't mind gays but wish they weren't so blatant.

You know, some people got alot of nerve.
Sometimes I don't believe the things I see and hear.
Have you met the woman who's shocked by two women kissing?
and in the same breath tells you that she's pregnani?

But gays shouldn't be blatant.

Or this straight couple sits next to you in a movie
And you can't hear the dialogue because of the sound effects.

But gays shouldn't be blatant.

And the woman in your office spends your whole lunch hour talking about her new bikini drawers
And how much her husband likes them.

But gays shouldn't be blatant.

Or the "hip" chick in your class
Rattling a mile-a-minute
While you're tryin' to get stoned in the "john"
About the campin' trip she took with her musician boy friend.

But gays shouldn't be blatant.

You go into a public bathroom
And all over the walls there's "John loves Mary" "Janis digs Richard"
"Pepe oves Dolores" Et Cetera

But gays shouldn't be blatant.

Or you go to an amusement park
And there's the tunnel of love
And pictures of straights painted on the front -
And grinning couples coming in and out.

But gays shouldn't be blatant.

The fact is
Blatant heterosexuals are all over the place
Supermarkets, movies
At work, in church, in books, on television
Every day and night
Everyplace
Even in gay bars
And they want gay men and women to go hide in the closet
So to you straight folks I say
"Sure I'll go if you go too
But I'm polite, so after you"

NEW MUSIC MONTH: Ode to Gravity

KPFA's long-standing affiliation with the world of experimental music will be reaffirmed this month as our Sound Sensitivity Information Director, alias Music Director, Charles Amirkhanian, welcomes to the studios the voices of avant-garde composers throughout the United States. Amirkhanian writes, "The primary focus will be on Bay Area composers, and although this sampling is by no means comprehensive, a variety of musical styles will be represented."

"The programs will be aired every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9:00 am-10:30 am and 11:00 am to 12 Noon in place of the regular Morning Concerts. Special guests include New York composers Philip Corner and Charlie Morrow, interviewed in New York last December, as well as live guest William Hibbard, director of the Center for New Music at the University of Iowa. Janice Giteck will introduce her pieces recorded at Belgian Radio during a tour of Europe by the Port Costa Players, and Maggi Payne, Meredith Monk, Jon Hassell, Roland Young, Ivan Wyschnegradsky, Herb Biclawa, Conlon Nancarrow all will be heard from. Oakland's Anthony Gnazzo is producing two new compositions for world premieres on the series including his homage to the current pop scene entitled Pun Crock.

"Herewith is a rogues gallery of the mild-mannered aural revolutionaries whose salvos occasionally provoke extremes of reaction in the same way that KPFA's political programs have been known to do on occasion. But the difference in the Seventies is that much of what these folks do is extremely beautiful and listenable in the traditional sense, as sensibilities have returned to an appreciation of consonant harmonies as well as dissonant, and regular rhythms as well as pointillistic. Another strain is that of Eastern culture, with meditation-like pieces being heard now as often as aggressive, overbearing ones. Tune in and find your medium among the new music composers, and remember to keep in mind that the unfamiliar music of today is the classical music of tomorrow—nobody thought much of Beethoven at the time either. So keep your ears peeled for the 10% which will survive the filtering process of music history."

Amirkhanian concludes: "Since its inception, KPFA has been the one consistently supportive public medium for the presentation of new music, and the worldwide reputation of Pacifica Radio for its coverage is constantly a source of encouragement and validation for many composers and performers who will be participating in these programs."

On Thursday, June 8, special guests, Louise Scripps and Martha Ashton of the Balasaraswati School of Music and Dance, will discuss and present classical and dance music of South India. Featured especially will be tapes of Yakshagana performances (the unique theatre of the Kannada and Telugu speaking peoples performed all night in the fields) and a talk about Bharata Natyam, (one of the oldest and most refined dance forms in India) and Balasaraswati, the world-renowned dancer and artist. Tapes of Finally, on Thursday, June 29, the evening will feature a live broadcast of one of the classical musicians of India visiting the Bay Area this summer.

BAIKIDA CARROL

Master Trumpeter, Composer

One of the leading exponents of the creative improvised music scene will be featured in a two-hour program that includes sounds from his latest adventures with Oliver Lake and Julian Priester at the Metro Arts Center; a 1978 European tour with Julius Hemphill; a multi-media performance of 1977 in which he performs a duo with bassist Carl Richardson; his controversial electric band, Savage Lust, that included Baba Duru and Paul Poty; and a solo performance at the Mapenzi in Berkeley.

All on The Secret's Out, Saturday, June 17, at 8:00 pm.

1750 ARCH CONCERTS June 9th: Roger Reynolds

Roger Reynolds was born in Detroit in 1934 and educated at the University of Michigan (Engineering Physics and Music). He has been active as a composer and as an organizer of contemporary music activity in the United States, Europe, and Japan. After coming to the University of California, San Diego, in 1969, Reynolds turned his attention to the more fundamental problem of fostering the development of new sound materials and performance contexts through his position as Director of the Center for Music Experiment at UCSD (1972-77).

Two threads run through Reynold's musical output: a commitment to theatrical and inter-media works (The Emperor of Ice Cream, 1962; Ping, 1968; I/O, 1971; Compass, 1974) and a concern for more abstract instrumental (and electronic) sound (Quick Are The Mouths of Earth, 1965; Traces, 1969; Fiery Wind, 1977).

Reynolds has received recognition from Guggenheim, Rockefeller, the National Institute of Arts & Letters, and the National Endowment for the Arts. His book, Mind Models (1975), is available from Holt, Rinehart and Winston. His work will be featured on the Arch St. Concert, June 9th at 8:30 pm.

June 30th: Charles Shere

A native of Berkeley, Charles Shere has made a large contribution to the musical life of the Bay Area. From 1963-'67 he was Music Director of KPFA radio station; he was formerly the Art and Music Critic for KQED T.V.; and along with Ann Kish founded "Ear," the only Bay Area publication devoted to New Music. This year he received a grant from the National Endowment of the Arts to complete "The Duchamp Opera," an on-going work. He is currently Art and Music critic for the Oakland Tribune and on the Mills College faculty. Tongues can be heard on the Arch St. Concert, June 30th at 8:00 pm. Explains Shere:

Tongues continues my preoccupation with the assembly of disparate elements into a single structure—pluralistic, not integrated. It is in a traditional concerto form: a developmental first movement based on contrasting elements, a three-part slow movement, and a rondo finale with recurring material, but the musicians are encouraged to inflect the music of this form as the developing spirit of the piece moves them—in a manner analogous to the developing poem the soloist will discover in the course of his "performance."

The piece was written during trying times and is dedicated to all periods of transition. It is also a gesture of appreciation to the late Bruce Munly, who created and directed an important source of my education, the Art and Music Room of the Berkeley Public Library.

Small Claims

by Ken McEldowney

Small claims court offers consumers a chance to get money back from businesses that have given them a raw deal, quickly and at low cost.

With the regular courts backed up for years and lawyers charging $40-50 an hour, small claims is an excellent alternative—but there are drawbacks. First the positive side:

1. It's you vs. the business when it comes to your court date . . . No lawyers are allowed.
2. The cost is very low. The filing fee is only $2 and there are no court costs.
3. The court session itself is informal. You are not expected to have background in law, just know the details of your case.
4. Once you file, the court date is usually set within a couple of weeks. You don't have to wait for a government agency to get around to your case.
5. In San Francisco, Sacramento and San Diego the small claims court is open one night a week and on Saturday, so you don't have to miss work to get your consumer complaint resolved. (Hopefully this one-year experiment will be expanded state-wide next year.)

Unfortunately, problems do exist. Foremost for many people is that you can sue for no more than $750. (And if you sue in small claims court you give up any right you had to sue in regular court.) This limitation is okay for most small problems but is totally inadequate for car accidents, to give but one example. Even a crumpled fender can now cost more than $1,000 to repair.

A larger problem is that once you win in court it is still up to you to collect. Small claims court will provide you the documents you need to get your money, but it is up to you to serve them and make sure you collect.

But even with these drawbacks, small claims court is an option that far too few consumers use. It's not difficult. For more information send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the California Department of Consumer Affairs and ask for a copy of their pamphlet "The Consumer and Small Claims Court". Also Consumer Action had an excellent article in the March issue of Consumer Action News. Give them a call at 626-2500 and have them send out a copy. To locate your local small claims court, look in the white pages of your telephone book under the name of your county. It will be listed under either the Municipal or Justice Court.

rock music which is an industry-controlled, star-producing, sexist and stagnant formula). Through thousands of home produced, fanzines, record swap meets, the burgeoning home-produced and distributed record labels, and just word of mouth, people are demanding an outlet."

Bohannon goes on to say there is no show like this on American radio, and that KPFA can best perform this type of service. "One of the big failures of the American left has been in relating to the average working person. If KPFA chooses an artsy approach, it will once again alienate a whole group of people it should reach. Third world and 'non-industrial' music is fine, but we need to reach our own urban and alienated youth and young adults. It is an opportunity to make some inroads, perhaps to turn many people on to other facets of KPFA, people who ordinarily never even heard of us (and who will support the station, if only to preserve their show) and to broadcast the best rock and roll show ever heard on American radio."

That sounds like a tall order—tune in on Sunday nights after 'State Of Emergency.' Among the types of music Bohannon lists for the program are doo-wop, rockabilly, up-tempo urban blues, soul, surf, motown, the British invasion, sixties punk and folk rock, contemporary, punk, new wave and power-pop. That's Sunday at Midnight for Maximum Rock and Roll.

Among other changes and additions: In May, State Of Emergency/Prison Poetry moved to 10:00 pm on Sundays, and alternating with Robbie Osman's Monday evening music show is a music show hosted by Ruth Hughes, The Cotton Comes to Berkeley Show. Not Tonight, I Have a Headache, Sue Donati's program about sex, moves to Thursday night at 10:15. Due to popular demand for an earlier time slot, William Mandel's Soviet Lives, can now be heard every Monday evening at 7:30 pm. And for the science fiction buffs, Probabilities has now been given a regular slot, every other Thursday at 2:00 pm.

OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY: Dr. Phil Polakoff

Dr. Phil Polakoff, whose program on Occupational Health and Safety airs on Before the News every alternate Thursday at 5:00 pm, is attempting an unprecedented large scale study of asbestos related diseases. While doctors have known of a relation between the handling of asbestos and diseases such as lung cancer, very little has been done until recently to protect workers from these occupational hazards. Polakoff has opened an office in Berkeley where he and three other Herrick Hospital doctors will interview and examine shipworkers and longshoremen who think they have an asbestos-related disease. Polakoff may eventually expand his institute to include investigation of other types of employment related diseases. It is expected that his study will cause an increase in the number of lawsuits involving occupational safety. He argues that industry must educate itself to the dangers inherent in asbestos and other materials, and he praises those corporations that have adopted progressive measures. Polakoff can be heard on June 8th and June 22nd. Call-ins are invited on his program.

CAZADERO MUSIC CAMP

Cazadero Music Camp is a Berkeley based summer camp that caters to teaching music: how to play instruments, music appreciation, even instrument building. The camp is located in the redwoods in the Russian River area, and is open to everyone. On Wednesday, June 14, Susan Kernes will talk about the camp with Dan Schmidt, a music professor at UC Berkeley who will be teaching a workshop on Javanese Gamelan Music, and with John Duykers, Music Director at Cazadero and currently with the Seattle Opera Company. It sounds like the camp is quite a unique experience, and you might want to check in that evening and find out what it is all about. Susan will be taking calls at 848-4425 if you have any questions.

CHRIS STRACHWITZ: Music in America

Chris Strachwitz was born in what is now Poland, and wits whenever reference is made to the fact that he is a German Count.

"I think the family once sold a bunch of pigs to Frederick the Great," he chuckles. In the 30's his American born mother brought the young Chris back a bunch of old 78's featuring the likes of Sonny Boy and Al Jolson, and Chris wore out the old victrola listening to them. Later he heard Lionel Hampton and Tommy Dorsey doing boogie woogie and swing over the American Armed Forces Network. When the family immigrated to America and moved in with a great-Aunt in Reno, Nevada, Chris was sent to school in Santa Barbara. Here he heard "hillbilly" and Mexican music on XERB in Baha, California and was exposed to the likes of Lightnin' Hopkins and John T. Hooker on KFUD in L.A.

Chris Strachwitz

"I was a radio nut" says Chris. "I even wrote to XERB and asked them what I had to do to be on the radio. They wrote back and said I had to be a Mexican national. I was disappointed, but undeterred. I loved the music. It was unlike anything I had ever experienced. So full of emotion. All I'd heard as a child was the Village Brass Band and the amateur operatic chorales of my Uncle. I love the Mexican language, I could listen to it forever. It's just like music." While admitting that he still can't speak Mexican, he claims he has always managed to make himself understood.

In 1959 he started teaching high school and began auctioning off old 78's that he bought from juke box dealers, taking out ads for them in the European papers. With this income, and a year's savings from salary, he bought a recorded and mike and headed off to Texas, and began making recordings for his new company, Arhoolie Records. Later Down Home Music Store was created to sell both Arhoolie records and other labels not readily available elsewhere. Recently Chris has branched out into film, financing Les Blank's Chulas Fronteras, a movie about Tex-Mex border music.

Since 1965, Chris has been doing Music in America on KPFA. He sees it as a great honor, having for many years been an ardent fan of Phil Elwood. The strength of KPFA he says, "Lies in its programmers, people full of passion and intensity who are totally committed to what they are doing. Ethnic Radio is dead. KPFA has to keep on."

Music in America can be heard each Wednesday at 8:00 pm, and Chris alternates a Jazz/Blues show with Phil Elwood each Sunday morning at 11:00 am.

THE WINNERS IN DO-WAH-DIDDY: Peabody Award Winner Tells Story

Laurie Garrett and I were huddled in a corner of the lavishly appointed meeting room of the Hotel Pierre in New York. One of the ubiquitous men in official Peabody Commission Red Blazer raised his voice above the dull roar of hobnobbing media heavies, "We have another sound take. . . quiet please!" Laurie and I moved to the dais.

No, this was not the actual presentation. . . they don't allow flashbulbs there, so all the winners had to go through a mock ceremony, replete with posed pictures and recited acceptance speeches, going through the motions. Laurie and I squeezed between a pair of red blazers.

"How do you hold this thing?" I asked, bronze medal in my hands, public relations grin on my face, "I've never done this kind of thing before." Someone corrected my grip, and then looked at the two of us quizzically.

"Where is your photographer?" he asked. All the heavies had their picture takers with them. We pointed to Kathy McAnally, holding my crippled Instamatic. "Is that all you have," asked one NBC cameraman incredulously. "Yup, that's it," she replied as she captured two-thirds of the scene in the tiny viewfinder.

One of the red jackets was announcing, in a southern-flavored baritone, that "Radio Station KPFA, Pacifica, Berkeley, California, earns a Peabody Award for the Science Story Series." I began to weave on my very high high heels. He looked over, then continued unfazed: "The series removes science from the laboratory and places it in everyday life in such a way as to make it understandable to the average person."

"And how!" I muttered to myself. Laurie looked as if she was suppressing a giggle as she settled herself behind the podium. I tried to make sure my smile would not explode into embarrassing audible pleasure squeaks as she began to read our official acceptance speech.

"When we were told that we had received the award, we had to search everywhere to find the money to be able to come here," she said, "because we were unpaid producers from a noncommercial listener-supported network." I heard a gasp from the audience. "We went on the air and made enough money in small donations to come out to receive the award. It's because," she explained, "we come from a radio station that is directly responsive to its listeners, and therefore directly supported by those listeners."

When she concluded, the other winners broke into spontaneous applause, the only applause we heard during the mock ceremony. What a rush! The two of us grabbed each other, trying not to be blinded by the gilt and the crystal. Then we did the thing that always seems to be the most fun. . . playing journalist, interviewing people. Only this time, when Steve Allen or Mary Tyler Moore or Norman Lear or whoever said into the microphone, "I'm so surprised, excited and honored to have won the award," we could chime in that we were winners too!

We're all winners. Thank you for your support and for helping us get to New York and bring the booty home.

CORRECTION

In the last issue of the FOLIO, we erroneously reported that the Peabody Award given to Adi Gevins and Laurie Garrett was the second to be won by the Pacifica system. KPFA-FM in Los Angeles won a Peabody in 1960 for "superior locally produced programming." The judges cited six different programs in giving the award. The 1957 award to KPFA (presented in 1958) was for "Meritorious and outstanding local public service, and for its courageous venture into the lightly trafficked field of thoughtful broadcasting." While the award does not mention programming in particular, the judges did cite a number of programs, including those of William Mandel (still on the air) in presenting the award.

NEW PROGRAMS

For those of you who search the airwaves in vain late Sunday nights, seeking Rock and Roll, you need look no more. Sunday nights, beginning at midnight, is time for a new program called Maximum Rock and Roll with Tim Bohannon and Eve Buckner. The show will focus on working class rock and roll. As Bohannon writes:

"There is a very large untapped sector of people who relate very strongly to rock and roll music, and rock and roll's force as an expression of liberation (I distinguish between rock and roll which is an energetic popular music of people's frustrations and desires, and

The New Right, though it traces its roots and leadership back to the Old Right, has a strategy that is slicker and far more dangerous. Rather than coming on like extremist kooks and paranoids of the John Birch variety, it seems to have learned lessons from old 'New Left' strategies, and is now mobilizing constituencies around each issue. Its advantage lies in its backing by large corporations such as Coors, and in the support of the 'born-again' Christians. It is promoting letter-writing campaigns and petition drives, orchestrating "taxpayers' revolts" and even calling for mass demonstrations. It aims at a new audience through the rallying cry "defend the family" which runs like a chorus through so many campaigns, among them anti-busing, anti-abortion, anti-ERA, and of course, homophobia.

This moralistic emphasis, coupled with the kind of rampant nationalistic imperialism evident in the Panama Canal controversy, is disturbingly reminiscent of the Nazis coming to power in Germany. There too, the complaints of a people suffering from the effects of declining imperial power and widespread inflation were diverted to lay the blame on the backs of the most victimized minority groups and radicals.

The appeal to the masses in Germany was often defined in sexual terms—as "purity of the race" and of the motherland itself. The first major book-burning in Nazi Germany was of the library of homosexual advocate Magnus Hirschfeld's Institute of Sexual Science in 1933. During the round-up for the concentration camps, Gypsies, prostitutes, communists and homosexuals, as well as Jews, were collected. Homosexuals were tracked down, arrested and marked with pink triangles, just as the Jews received the yellow Star of David on their armbands. Gay people provided 220,000 victims to the ovens, a fact which has only come to light in recent years.

In view of this, and in view of the relationship between repression then and repression now, last year's Gay Freedom Day adopted the pink triangle as its insignia. The events in Miami helped turn Gay Freedom Day back to its original conception as an active response to repression, as well as a celebration of gay pride.

This year, the threat of the Briggs Initiative is expected to draw hundreds of thousands to the march, and to involve greater numbers in the necessary day-to-day work which will be required to educate the people of California around the issue. Gay people plan on doing outreach work into many other communities. Because of the difficulty and danger involved for many gay people to 'come out' on the job, non-gay people can be especially helpful in raising the issue of the Briggs initiative in schools, at the workplace, the union, the church and in the community. For more information on the Briggs initiative, contact 431-1522 or 626-2642. All progressive people are invited to join this year's March on June 25. Come with your organization, or join KPFA and Fruit Punch in solidarity with gay people and in common struggle against neo-fascism in America.

Proposition 8 or 13? Your choice.

By Helen Mickiewicz

Should proposition thirteen, the Jarvis-Gann property tax limitations initiative, pass on June 6th, Californians will face a radically altered society. While much of what will, or may, come about if thirteen is not defeated is still unclear, certain facts are indisputable.

Proposition thirteen will limit the amount of taxes that can be assessed on real property to not more than one percent of the property's value as of March 1st, 1975. This limit does not apply to bonded property. The property tax limitation means that property taxes in California will be cut by roughly sixty percent. The revenues from the remaining property taxes will be distributed approximately as they are now. New taxes voted in by the state legislature will need a two-thirds majority to pass, but no new taxes on real property may be assessed. The entire measure will go into effect on July 1st of this year if it is passed by the voters in June.

Arguments on the results of thirteen's passage center primarily on what, if any, community services will be cut back or eliminated. Proponents of Jarvis-Gann, including Howard Jarvis, insist that claims of butchered budgets and drastically reduced services are exaggerated. But even Mr. Jarvis cannot, or should not, dispute the fact that most community services are funded directly by state property tax revenues. Opinion on exactly how much the state and consequently, local governments, would lose under Jarvis-Gann range from 5 to 8 billion dollars. Naturally, those areas most dependent on revenues from property taxes will be most affected. Local governments in the Bay Area are talking of major cutbacks in budgets and services if thirteen is not defeated. Among the things that would be affected are the following:

Public transportation would be cut—AC Transit estimates that its services will be "trimmed" by 80%. Museums, parks, libraries (the San Francisco Public Library system could close completely July 1st) all will be affected. Some fire stations will close and police services will be cut. The Oakland City Council, as one example, is considering an emergency budget that would cut some departments by up to sixty percent, others by twenty or thirty percent. A study done at UCLA in mid-May concluded that almost a half-million public and private jobs in California would be wiped out if Jarvis-Gann passes. The initiative could destroy the effects of affirmative action and CETA programs.

Proponents of Prop. 13 argue that such cuts are not necessary. They point to the state budget surplus that could be tapped to continue services at their present level. Above all, they say that the initiative would force public employees to work for their pay and would rein in the extravagances of government spending.

A "yes" vote on thirteen is tempting for homeowners, only if they are unaware of the facts. If thirteen passes, homeowners stand to get about 35% of the property tax cuts that will go into effect. But businesses will get the rest. Taxes would be cut on factories, apartment houses, farms and other classes of property. Thirteen of the state's largest companies could reap more than 430 million dollars in tax cuts if Jarvis-Gann passes. And some of those, in particular Pacific Telephone, make no bones about the fact that their savings will not be passed on to consumers.

In contrast, Proposition 8, being hailed as an alternative to Prop. 13 on the June ballot, will cut property taxes for homeowners by about 32% (versus almost 60% under 13) but will give no cuts to businesses. In addition, the income tax credit for renters would be increased. Proposition 13 has no provision for tax relief for renters.

So, anyway you look at it, those who stand to gain the most under Jarvis-Gann are businesses. Yet business is not very enthusiastic about the initiative either. Bank of America is just one of many businesses that are openly opposing thirteen—most others are remaining publicly neutral. Why? Because they are afraid that if thirteen passes, other taxes will be assessed that, in the long run, will cost them more than the property taxes they now pay. That leaves Howard Jarvis and Paul Gann, both real estate developers, among the few who will benefit at all from the initiative.

Batik

BY LISA KOKIN

In March 1975, I started making batiks with political themes. Inspired by the final victory of the Vietnamese people, I got out the materials I'd bought years before and started working. I've been doing it ever since, and have found my subjects and inspiration in people all over the world. What interests me is people in motion, working together to change their lives and determine their destinies. In my batiks are working people from Chile to the International Hotel, from South Africa to Mission Street.

I am connected to the people in my batiks by a common desire for revolutionary change. The process of this change is a long one everywhere; there are victories to be celebrated, pain to be shared, and work to be done. I see my responsibility as an artist to express and communicate these ideas, and to make the batiks available through exhibits to as wide an audience as possible.

The Batiks will be on exhibit at the KPFA studios through the month of June.

Political consensus is rare enough in the United States, but every body hates the Nazis. That's why the controversy over their right

(and that of the Klu Klux Klan and other extremist groups) to speak and demonstrate has broad significance in the perennial American debate over the first amendment. This program will examine the conflict which re-evaluates the first amendment. If the Nazis have the right to demonstrate until the moment when their demonstrations cease to be peaceable, certainly no demonstration may be prohibited. Should the first amendment apply to such groups? And if not, where should the line be drawn? Produced by Adi Gevins. Tonight Chris features the music of Buddy Jones, an excellent country singer of the 1930's who has remained lamentably obscure in recent times (of his many 78s, we know of only a handful that have been reissued, and those in Japan!) Jones' records feature not only his down-home, good-timey songs and vocals (some may remind you of Jimmie Rodgers and even Woody Guthrie) but also excellent backup by "hot" lead guitar and Western Swing bands. Furaha Hiyati hosts a lively mixture of commentary, special reports, interviews and music. At 7:00: The Right to be Wrong: Free Speech for Extremist Groups. Political consensus is rare enough in the U.S. but every body hates the Nazis. That's why the controversy over their right (and that of the Klu Klux Klan and other extremist groups) to speak and demonstrate has broad significance in the perennial American debate over the first amendment. This program will examine the conflict which re-evaluates the first amendment. If the Nazis have the right to demonstrate until the moment when their demonstrations cease to be peaceable, certainly no demonstration may be prohibited. Should the first amendment apply to such groups? And if not, where should the line be drawn? Produced by Adi Gevins. Principle advisor David Fishlow, executive director, Northern California American Civil Liberties Union. The Civil Liberties Radio Education Project is funded by the California Council for the Humanities in Public Policy.
